

Exchange-sponsored analyst coverage

RU (TINA) GAO, University of Queensland

LAKSHMANAN SHIVAKUMAR, London Business School

BALJIT K. SIDHU, University of New South Wales

17 April 2017

Corresponding author: Lakshmanan Shivakumar, London Business School, Regent's Park, London NW1 4SA, United Kingdom. Email: LShivakumar@london.edu
Phone: +44 20 7000 8115; Fax: +44 20 7000 8101

We thank Sudipta Basu, Mark Bradshaw, Wayne Guay, Phil Shane, Tom Smith, and the two anonymous referees and Joy Begley (editor), for their comments and suggestions. We also thank seminar participants at the Singapore Stock Exchange, the 2010 INTACCT conference, the 2011 American Accounting Association Annual Meeting, University of Auckland, INSEAD, London Business School, London School of Economics and Political Science, McMaster University, University of Melbourne, University of Miami, Monash University, University of Technology (Sydney), and the Rotterdam School of Management for their helpful comments. We thank Elena Beccalli and Erik Peek for help with IBES translation data files. We owe special thanks to David Simmonds for assembling the Singapore liquidity data from a raw feed into a usable form, and to Wen He for his programming efforts in earlier versions of the paper. We are particularly grateful to Jeffrey Wooldridge, Denzil Fiebig, Juan Miguel Villa for helping us more deeply understand the self-selection issues in our context and suggesting solutions for them. We are grateful to SIRCA for help with data extraction and to Amy Au and Chuan Yu for research assistance. This research is funded by an Australian Research Council Linkage Grant with the Australian Securities Exchange as the industry partner.